

On October 22, 2010, Heritage Mississauga held its annual 'Spirit Walk' in the Old Port Credit Heritage District in honour of the village's 175th Anniversary. This walking heritage tour was supplemented by in-character costumed actors portraying actual people from Port Credit's past.

In addition, the Port Credit 175th Pumpkin Patch was open for children to decorate a mini pumpkin and take it home. This took place behind the Lighthouse (where the log cabin was), and was organized by Kelly Ralston and friends (who carved the PC175 pumpkins, shown above).

FORT

CREDIT

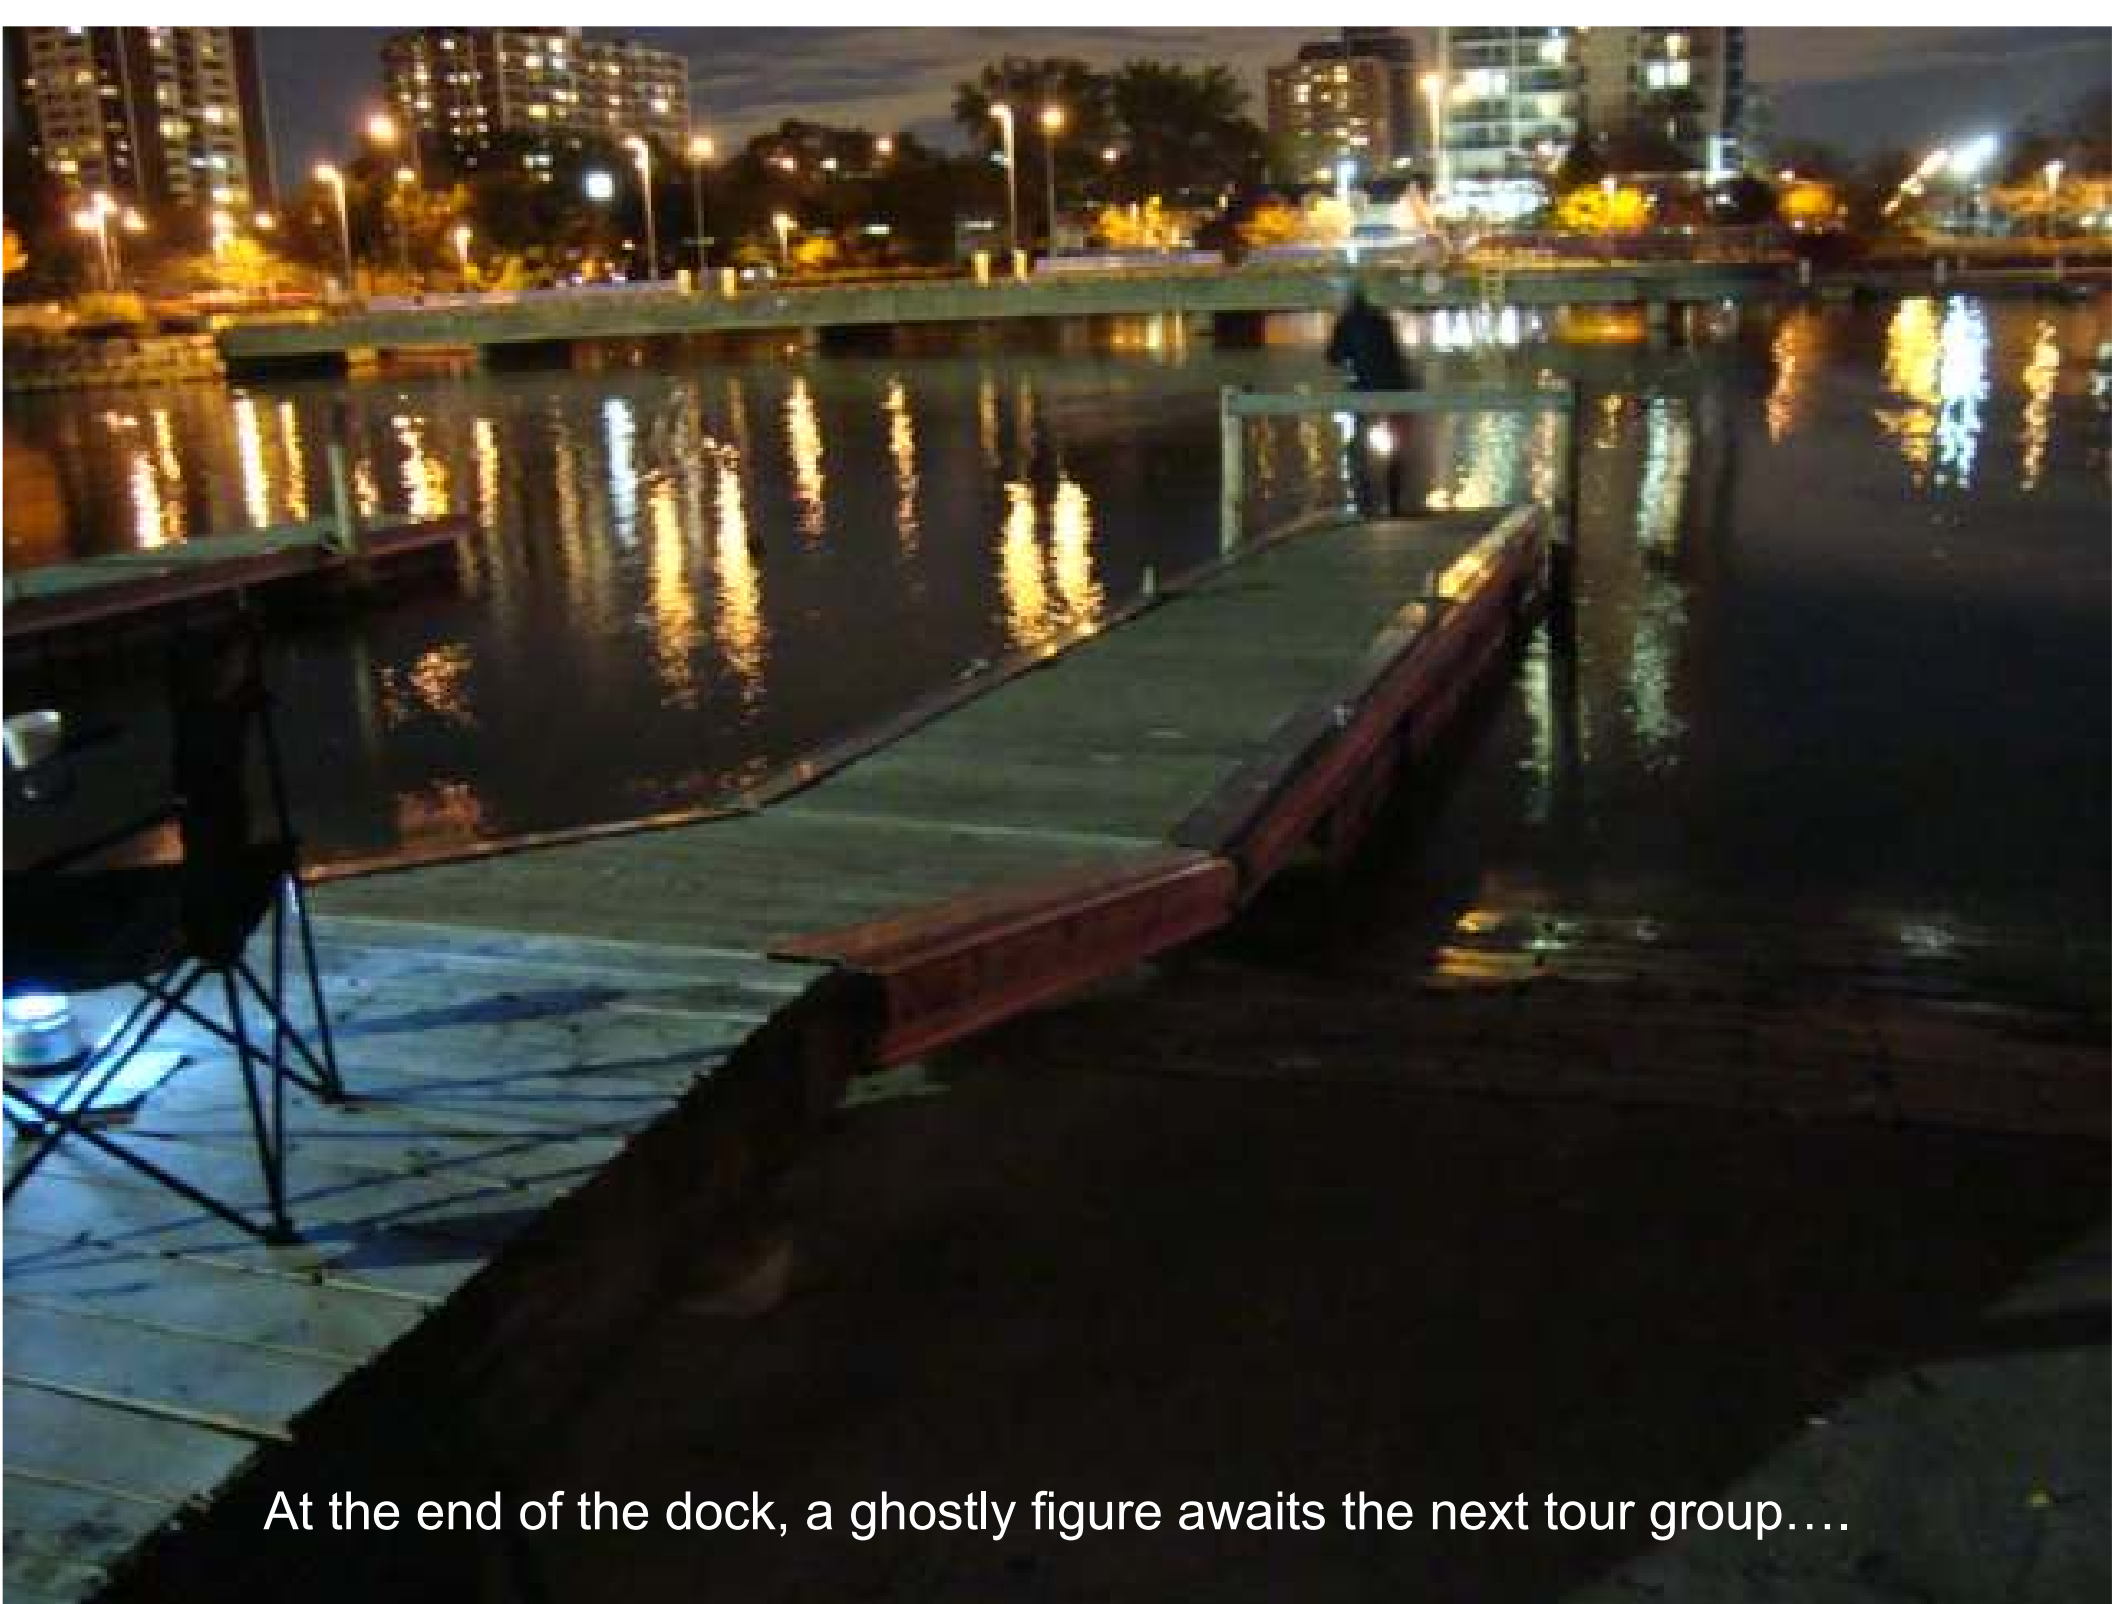

175

The full moon shone throughout the evening...

At the end of the dock, a ghostly figure awaits the next tour group....

And here they are, waiting for the first ghost to appear....

Greg Carraro, Vice-President of Heritage Mississauga, plays the role of Captain Abraham Block

Richard Collins, on the PC175 Executive and President of the Mississauga South Historical Society, leads this tour to the next stops

The old Wilcox Inn

The ghost of industrialist F.C. Capriole suddenly appears

The former home of Captain Abraham Block

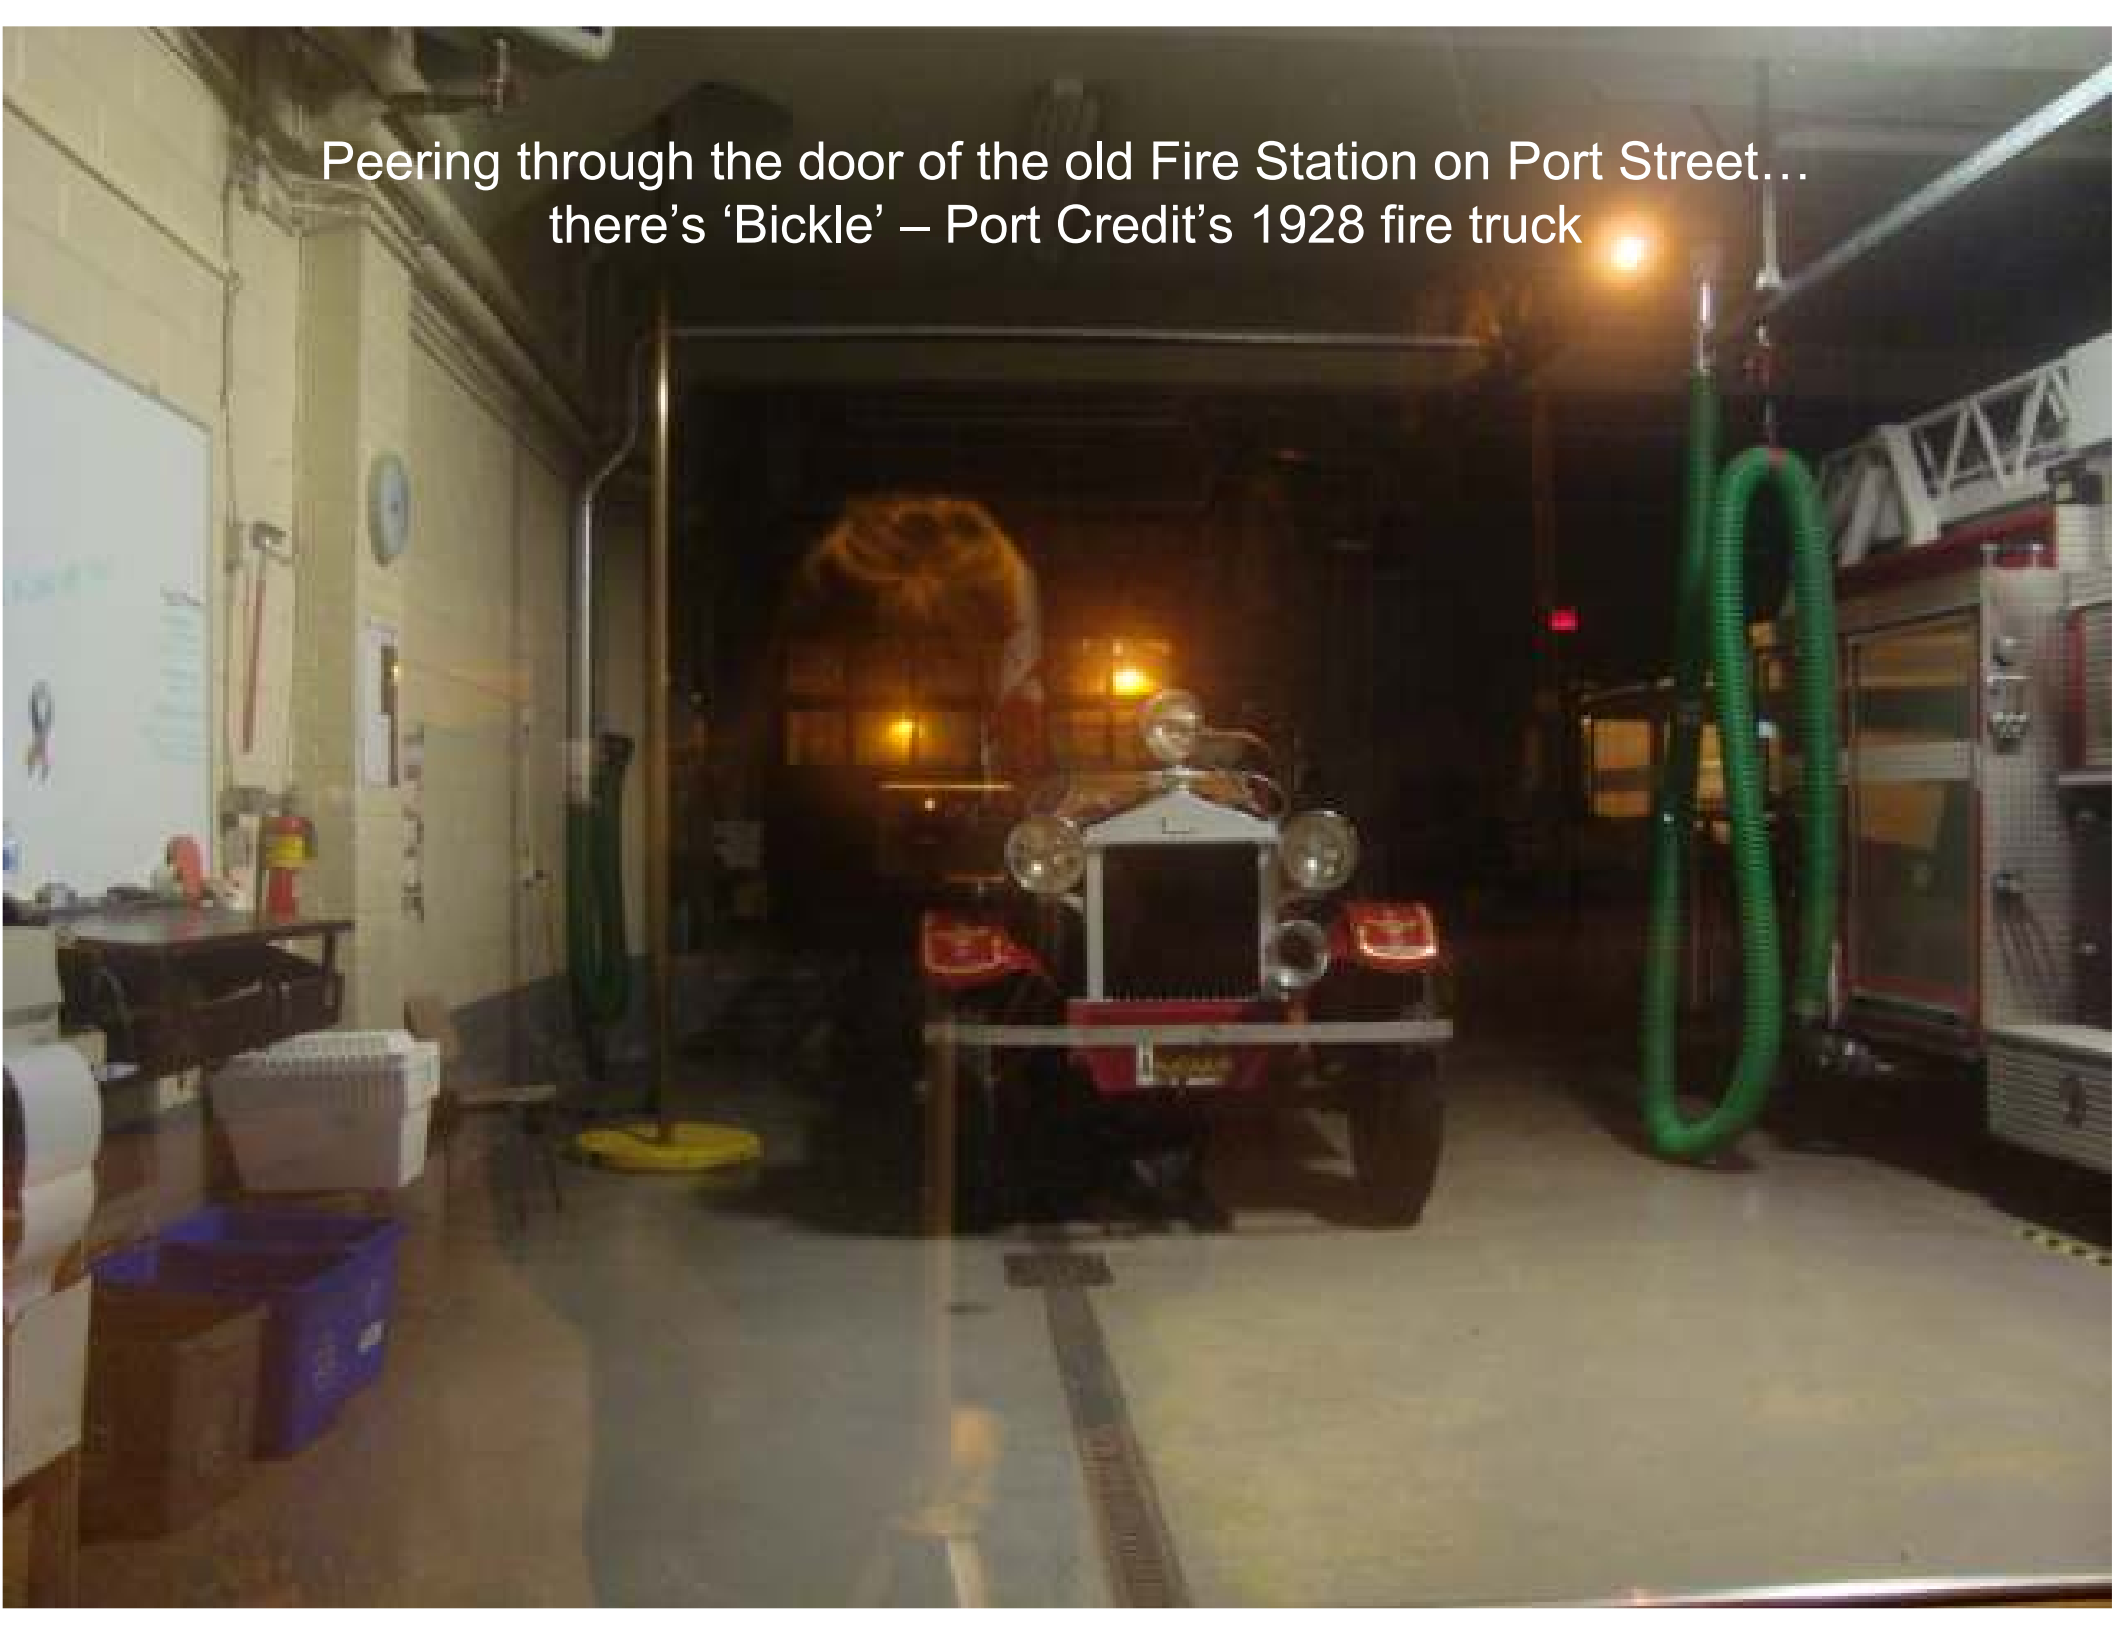

Annemarie Hagan, Manager of the Museums of Mississauga
as a 'ghost' in front of the old Parkinson house

The old Lynde house

Peering through the door of the old Fire Station on Port Street...
there's 'Bickle' – Port Credit's 1928 fire truck

151
METHODIST IN W
FIRST UNITED CHURCH

In the graveyard at St. Mary's Star of the Sea Church

Some of the ghosts seen walking in the Port Credit Heritage District....

Hmmm.... Maybe they're human after all!

All the 'spirits' gathered by the Lighthouse at the end of the tour.

At the end of a very spooky evening, the moon went behind the clouds

